A Needle in a Haystack

A bottle of hay was formerly much used in Derbyshire, England, and probably is so still, to denote a bundle of hay, which was taken from a rick to fodder cattle in a field. When it was difficult to find anything that had been lost the farmer folk were wont to say: You may as well hunt for it as for a needle in a bottle of hay.

Some times the rope tied round the hay had a piece of wood with an eye in it at the end, through which the rope was passed to tie up the bundle and a sharp point at the other end, and this piece of wood may have been called a needle; if so a needle of this kind may have been referred to in the proverbial saying.

Certain morbid conditions must exist in the stomach and intestines to encourage worms, and they will exist as long as these morbid conditions permit them to. To be rid of them and spare the child suffering, use Miller's Worm Powders. They will correct the digestive irregularities by destroying the worms, conditions favorable to worms will disappear, and the child will have no more suffering from that cause.

When Tied Together

An Irish couple, whose married bliss was not without a few squalls, received a homely lecture from their spiritual adviser regarding their disgraceful quarrels.

His Reverence—That dog and cat you have agree better than you.

The reply somewhat upset him.

If yer reverence toled thim together so'd soon change yer mind.

Dressed the Part

The juvenile of Puddlesfallow had opened their cricket season. The day was fine, and the players were in good form; in fact everything was in season, even the disgust of the sharp-featured lady whose garden adjoined the pitch.

Funny thing your boy Jimmy can't play a game without having such big ideas, she remarked over the fence to the lady next door. What's he always want to stand umpire for?

Pity you can't get something better to do than to find fault, came the reply. He's got a right to stand umpire if he likes, I suppose.

Daresay he has, snapped the sharp-featured lady; but next time he sneaks my old man's nightshirt over the line to dress himself up in he'll get something that'll make him want to give other fellows a chance.

Bread and cheese and kisses;
They go together, hey?
I have met with misses
Who didn't think that way.

Turned Down

Dear Mabel, he began, do you love me?

Oh, George!

Don't you, Mabel—just a little, tiny bit?

Well, yes, George.

And if I married you would your father give us a separate establishment?

Yes, George.

And take me into partnership?

Yes, George.

And would your mother keep away from us except when I invited her?

She would, George.

And your brothers and sisters, too?

Why certainly, George.

And of course the old gent would settle my debts.

Of course, George.

And buy us a motorcar and provide you with a handsome dowry?

Yes, George.

Darling, will you marry me?

No, George!

THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day it is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Lincoln Highway

Toronto, Ont.—A. J. H. Ekhardt, of 107 Niagara street, has written a letter to W. G. Robertson, secretary of the Ontario Motor League here, in which he urges to assist in the building of the Lincoln Highway, sending contributions to the national headquarters in Detroit, Michigan, because he declares, the Lincoln Highway will benefit Canadians far more than residents in many sections of the United States.

"I am writing these lines," says Mr. Ekhardt, "to inform you that I have received from the Lincoln Highway Association, a circular asking for $5 each from motor car owners to help build a highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific and asking: Will you help? This is a worthy enterprise. I do not think there is a Canadian but who would appreciate making a trip from the East to the Pacific Coast over this highway. I myself have sent a cheque for $5 and will take pleasure in riding over it some time if everything stays well with me.

Outside of that I appreciate the opportunity to subscribe to a fund in memory of such a grand man as Abraham Lincoln, who was, to my way of thinking, one of the greatest English speaking men ever born, the man who abolished slavery in America. Think how Canadians will appreciate this Highway. Automobile owners in the Southern States, or Michigan or Minnesota have no more right to subscribe to the highway than Canadians. Another reason why Canadians should appreciate this highway is because it will be impossible for Canada to build a motor highway with the rough country to contend with between Toronto and Winnipeg, conditions that are not the same in the United States.

I would like to see the Lincoln Highway proposition brought to the attention of the different motor clubs of Canada and I feel confident the Canadian people will look upon this subject in a very generous manner. Canadians will be much closer to this great highway than the average citizen of the United States. I am writing as a Canadian of the sixth generation, born within 18 miles of Toronto.

He Lost

A golfer noted for his meanness noticed that a strange lad was carrying his clubs.

You're not the boy I have usually had, he said.

No, sir, replied the lad; you see we tossed who'd be caddy for you.

Oh, I see, said the golfer, and you won't?

No, answered the caddy, sorrowfully, I lost.

Scored

Mr. Smart was a very testy old fellow, and there was one thing he hated more than another and that was to be caught napping. As a consequence he was always very suspicious of any deed or word the full meaning of which he could not grasp.

A few days ago he paid a visit to the Zoo, and being fond of animals, was greatly interested, and soon got into conversation with one of the keepers. A very entertaining chat ensued.

As Mr. Smart was about to leave the keeper turned to him and asked: By the way, sir, have you seen our black-faced antelope?

There, thought the old gent, was an attempt to 'have him.'

No, sir, he replied, stiffly. I have not. May I ask with whom it was that your black-faced antelope eloped.

A Thorough Pill.—To clear the stomach and bowels of impurities and irritants is necessary when their action is irregular. The pills that will do this work thoroughly are Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which are mild in action but mighty in results. They purge painlessly and effectively, and work a permanent cure. They can be used without fear by the most delicately constituted, as there are no painful effects preceding their gentle operation.

The Widder's Pig

Mike Murphy was taken to task by his spiritual adviser for having stolen Widow Maloney's pig. The evidence against Mike was so direct and positive that it was worse than useless for him to deny the crime, and he listened with downcast eyes and much meekness to a well-deserved lecture from the priest upon the wickedness of the theft he had committed, till the reverend gentleman asked him what he would say on the Day of Judgment when he should be confronted by Mrs. Maloney and her pig, when he brightened up at a happy thought, and said:

And ye say that the pig'll be there and Mrs. Maloney'll be there, too, living witnesses against you. What, I repeat, can you say in such a presence?

Yer reverence, I'll say, Widow Maloney, there's yer pig, take it.

A Good Hand

Booth Tarkington, like most literateurs, writes a wretched hand. Of this he said in New York recently:

Once, crossing to Naples, I sat on a chair with pad and fountain pen at work on a short story. A young Peorian stopped before me.

By gosh, he said, I wish I could write as well as you do.

I smiled—and the Peorian resumed his promenade. The next time he passed me he said again:

Gee, what a hand! If I could only write like that!

Again I smiled a flattered smile, and the Peorian made another round of the deck. Then he said a third time: Oh, if I could only write a hand like yours!

nettled a little by this third interruption I said:

Well, what would you do if you could?

Go to China, said the Peorian, and write labels for tea boxes.

WOMAN COULD NOT WALK

She Was So Ill—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pentwater, Mich.—"A year ago I was very weak and the doctor said I had a serious displacement. I had backache and bearing down pains so bad that I could not sit in a chair or walk across the floor and I was in severe pain all the time. I felt discouraged as I had taken everything I could think of and was no better. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am strong and healthy."

—Mrs. ALICE DARLING, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 77, Pentwater, Mich.

Read What Another Woman says: Peoria, Ill.—"I had such backaches that I could hardly stand on my feet. I would feel like crying out lots of times, and had such a heavy feeling in my right side. I had such terrible dull headaches every day and they would make me feel so drowsy and sleepy all the time, yet I could not sleep at night."

"After I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a week I began to improve. My backache was less and that heavy feeling in my side went away. I continued to take the Compound and am cured."

"You may publish this if you wish." —Miss CLARA L. GAUWITZ, R.R. No. 4, Box 82, Peoria, Ill.

Such letters prove the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for woman's ills. Why don't you try it?

Bacon's Mother's Advice

Bacon's mother appears to have kept a sharp eye on his behaviour long after he had attained years of discretion. In 1594, when he was thirty-three years old and the leading orator in the House of Commons, we find her writing to her son:

Look well to your health. Sup not nor sit up late. Surely I think your drinking to bedwards hindereth your and your brother's digestion very much. I never knew any but sickly that used it, besides being ill for head and eyes. Observe well, yet in time.

She was giving orders at express rate, for they were married; and he as a rule the most meek and submissive of men, was like the proverbial worm, beginning to turn.

Do you think, he inquired, that you rule the whole of the universe? No, she snapped, but I rule the first letter of it

FIVE ratepayers present at the annual ratepayers meeting to hear how affairs of the town had been conducted during the year and to hear of the financial standing of the town. Somewhat of a farce, eh! But who is to blame, the ratepayer or the town council? It has been reported that as the Town Act did not call for the meeting to be advertised decently that the Council was not called upon to go to the expense of four or five dollars to advertise this meeting and to let the ratepayers have a chance to hear how the hundreds of dollars of their taxes had been spent. The ratepayers would have put their hands in their pockets and given a few cents each to pay the paltry sum for advertising the meeting decently instead of posting up a written notice or two which nobody saw if they had known that the Council felt that way about it. The ratepayers want to hear how town affairs stand at least once a year, and to discuss same, but they have no chance unless they are properly informed of the fact that the annual meeting is to be held. The Council also benefit by having a good meeting at this time as they can usually get a line on how the ratepayers feel concerning public matters and can act accordingly.

PRESIDENT SUSPENDER

NONE SO EASY

THE WINDOW AT THE WHITE CAT

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

What does one know about new servants? she responded. They bring you references, but references are the price most women pay to get rid of their servants without a fuss. Rose was fat and old, but Della was pretty. I thought she rather liked Carter.

Carter as well. Shields, the policeman. I put Miss Della down as a flirt.

And you have no idea where Carter went?

None. Wardrop came in then. The two elderly ladies, it seemed, had tea and toast in their rooms when they walked. Wardrop looked haggard and worn, avoided Miss Fleming's eyes, and, after ordering eggs instead of his chop, looked for his watch.

I want to get the 9.30, Margie, he said. I may not be out to dinner. He turned to go, but came back to me and held out his hand.

I may not see you again, he began. Not if I see you first, I interrupted. I have made you a Maitland. I didn't think that anything but a prodigious nature could duplicate Miss Letitia's nose. I'm honestly sorry, Mr. Knox, and if you do not want Miss Jane at that bump with a cold knife and some butter, you'd better duck before she comes down. Goodbye, Margie.

I think the girl was as much baffled as I was by the change in his manner when he spoke to me. His smile faded and he hardly met her eyes. I thought that his aloofness puzzled rather than hurt her. When the house door had closed behind him, she dropped her chin in her hand and looked across the table.

You did not tell me the truth last night, Mr. Knox, she said. Something has happened to Harry.

He was robbed of his raveling bag, I explained on Fred's theory that half a truth is better than a poor lie.

His traveling bag? she repeated scornfully. Mr. Knox, something has happened to my father, and you and Harry are hiding it from me.

On my honor, it is nothing of the sort, I hastened to assure her. I saw him for only a few minutes, just long enough for him to wreck my appearance.

He did not speak of father?

No. She got up and crossing to the wooden mantel, put her arms upon it and leaned her head against them. I wanted to ask him, she said drearily.

ECZEMA ITCHED AND BURNED

Until She was Nearly Crazy, Began with Watery Blisters. On Ears, Eyes, Hands and Ankles. Could Not Sleep for Scratching. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Brunswick St., Fredericton, N. B.—"I had a very bad case of eczema. The trouble began with watery blisters and itched and burned until I was nearly crazy. It was on my ears, eyes, hands and ankles. I could not keep the bed clothes over me at night for the smarting and itching. My ears would swell. I would scratch until the blood would run and then form a scab. I felt as if I could take a knife and cut the flesh on my hands. It would disfigure my face and make it smart and burn and swell. I could not sleep at night for scratching.

"I tried everything I heard of without getting any benefit. I used lots of home remedies, such as lard and sulphur, and also was treated for it. Then I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they gave me great ease. I used them about four months and I am happy to say I am never troubled now. The Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me completely." but I am afraid to. Suppose he does not know and I should tell him. He would go to Mr. Schwartz at once, and Mr. Schwartz is treacherous. The papers would get it, too.

Her eyes filled with tears, and I felt as awkward as a man always does when a woman begins to cry.

I didn't sleep much, she explained, dabbling at her eyes. Mr. Knox, are you sure it was only Harry trying to get into the house last night?

Only Harry, I repeated. There was some one moving about upstairs not long before I came down, she said slowly.

You heard me. I almost fell down the stairs.

Did you brush past my door and strike the knob? she demanded.

No. I was not near any door.

Very well, triumphantly. Some one did. Not only that, but they were in the storeroom on the floor above. I could hear one person, and perhaps two, going from one side of the room to the other and back again.

You heard a goblin quadrille. First couple forward and back, I said facetiously.

I heard real footsteps—unmistakable ones.

I was more impressed than I cared to show.

We crept past the two closed doors behind which the ladies Maitland were presumably taking out crimps and taking in their tea. Then up a narrow, obtrusively clean stairway to the upper floor. It was an old fashioned sloping roofed attic with narrow windows and a bare floor. At one end a door opened into a large room, and in there were the family trunks of four generations of Maitlands. One on another they were all piled there—little hair trunks, square topped trunks, huge saratogas of the period when the two maiden ladies were in their late teens—and there were handsome, modern trunks too. For Miss Fleming's satisfaction I made an examination of the room but it showed nothing.

We gave up finally. Part way down the attic stairs Margery stopped, her eyes fixed on the white scrubbed rail. Following her gaze, I stopped too, and I felt a sort of chill go over me. No spot or blemish, no dirty finger print marked the whiteness of that stair rail except in one place. On it, clear and distinct, every line of the palm showing, was the reddish imprint of a hand.

Margery had turned very white. When the first revulsion had passed I reached over and touched the stain but it was quite dry of course and it was still reddish brown. Hunter said afterward it must have been about six hours old, and as things transpired he was right. The stain showed a hand somewhat short and broad, with widened finger tips; marked in ink, it would not have struck me so forcibly, perhaps, but there, its ugly red against the white wood, it seemed to me to be the imprint of a brutal, murderous hand.

We went on downstairs into the quiet and peace of the dining room. I got some hot coffee for Margery, for she looked shaken, and found I had missed my train.

I am beginning to think I am being pursued by a malicious spirit, she said, trying to smile. I came away from home because people got into the house at night and left queer signs of their visits and now, here at Bellwood where nothing ever happens the moment I arrive things begin to occur. And just as it was at home the house was so well locked at home.

I did not tell her of the open door, just as I had kept from her the fact that only the contents of Harry Wardrop's bag had been taken. That it had been the work of one person and that person having in some way access to the house, had also stolen the pearls, now was my confident belief.

I looked at Bell—the maid—as she moved around the dining room, her stolid face was not intelligent, certainly not cunning. Heppie, the cook and only other servant, was partly blind, and her horizon was the diameter of her largest kettle. No—it had not been a servant, this mysterious intruder who passed the Maitland silver on the sideboard without an attempt to take it, and who foundered around an attic at night in search of nothing more valuable than patchwork quilts and winter flannels.

It must have been after 9 o'clock when Bella came running into the room. Ordinarily a slow and clumsy creature, she almost flew. She brought up against a chair and a cup went flying. The breaking of a cup must have been a serious offense in Miss Letitia Maitland's house.

Miss Jane, she gasped, Miss Jane, she's—she's gone. She's been run off with.

CHAPTER V A Fountain Pen

Do you mean she is not in her room? asked Margery incredulously. Isn't she somewhere around the house?

Go up and look at the room, the girl replied, and with Margery leading, we ran up the stairs.

Miss Jane's room was empty. From somewhere near Miss Letitia could be heard lecturing Heppie about putting too much butter on the toast. Her high voice pitched for Heppie's old ears, rasped me. Margery closed the door and we surveyed the room together.

The bed had been occupied, its coverings had been thrown back, as if its occupants had risen hurriedly. The room itself was in a state of confusion, a rocker lay on its side, and Miss Jane's clothing, folded as she had taken it off, had slid off on to the floor. Her shoes stood neatly at the foot of the bed, and a bottle of toilet vinegar had been upset, pouring a stream over the marble top of the dresser and down on to the floor. Over the high wooden mantel the Maitland who had been governor of the state years ago hung at a waggish angle, and a clock had been pushed aside and stopped at half past 1.

Margery picked up Miss Jane's new lace cap from the floor. It was crumpled and spotted with blood.

She has been killed, Margery said in a choking voice.

Margery had more presence of mind than I had.

Call Robert, the gardener, she said, and have him help you search the grounds and cellars. I will take Bella and go through the house. Above everything, keep it from Aunt Letitia as long as possible.

It takes a short time to search an acre of lawn and shrubbery. There was no trace of the missing woman anywhere outside the house, and from Bella, as she sat at the foot of the front stairs with her apron over her head, I learned in a monosyllable that nothing had been found in the house. Margery was with Miss Letitia, and from the excited conversation I knew she was telling her—not harrowing details, but that Miss Jane had disappeared during the night.

THE TORTURES OF RHEUMATISM

Driven From the System by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The sufferer from rheumatism who has not gone about curing himself in the right way must expect a return of the torture with every change to cold or damp weather. It is not the change in the weather that causes the rheumatism, but it does start the aches and pains. Rheumatism is a deep-seated disorder of the blood. You cannot possibly cure it with outward applications of hot fomentations as so many people in their ignorance of the real cause of the trouble try to do.

Rheumatism can only be driven out of the system by driving out the poisonous acid in the blood. This can only be done by making the blood supply rich, red and pure. It is in this way that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure rheumatism, even after other remedies have failed. These Pills make rich, red blood, they go right to the root of the trouble, and the pains and aches are driven from the system and will not return if the blood supply is kept pure. That is the whole secret of curing rheumatism, and if you are a sufferer begin to cure yourself to-day by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Among the many sufferers from rheumatism who have been cured by this medicine is Miss Mary D. Kelly, South Dumfries, Ont. Miss Kelly says: "Some time ago I had a very bad attack of rheumatism. At times I would be confined to bed for a couple of days and would seem almost paralysed with the intense pain in my back and legs. At such times I could not walk, and my joints were stiff and swollen. I consulted different doctors and took their medicine, but did not get more than temporary relief. At this time a neighbor advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a supply. After taking a few boxes I found they were greatly helping me, and I continued their use until the trouble completely disappeared. I can strongly recommend this medicine to others who suffer as I did from the pains and tortures of rheumatism." You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A medical professor wrote on the blackboard in his laboratory: Professor Wilson informs his students that he has this day been appointed honorary physician to his majesty the king.

In the course of the morning he had occasion to leave the room, and found on his return that some wag had added to the announcement the words:

God save the king.

The Word 'Picnic'

Few people know the original meaning of the word 'picnic.' It is to be found set out in The London Times of a hundred years ago.

A picnic supper consists of a variety of dishes. The subscribers to this entertainment have a bill of fare presented to them, with a number against each dish. The lot which he draws obliges him to furnish the dish marked against it, which he either takes with him in his carriage or sends by a servant. The proper variety is preserved by the talents of the maître d'hôtel, who forms the bill of fare. As the cookery is furnished by so many people of fashion, each strives to excel, and thus a picnic supper not only gives rise to much pleasant mirth, but generally can boast of the refinement of the art.

The superintendent of a certain Sunday school in the Midlands, who had attained a good position, was trying to show his boys that he had gained it by total abstinence. He gave them several instances where men had lost their places through drink, and he had been fortunate enough to gain those places.

At the close of the address he said: Now, boys, to what do I owe my present position?

Much to his surprise the boys cried in chorus, Drink, sir!

He had just reached the philosophical stage when he slipped into a restaurant for a bite to eat. He ordered and then sat staring ahead, quietly thoughtful in expression, and waited.

It is admitted he did some waiting too. What happened to his order couldn't be understood outside the regular restaurant kitchen, but he spent half an hour sitting there staring ahead of him.

At last it came. As the waiter put the order before him, he started from his deep study, as if he had forgotten he had an order coming. Then, looking up at the fair transporter of edibles, he said:

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again, As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again, As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

The Jest That Recoiled

It Ended With an Unexpected Announcement.

By LOUISE J. STRONG.

Ellison had sometimes imagined what "might have been" had Millicent Waring been other than the only child of a multimillionaire—what would have been, rather, for he would have encompassed heaven and earth to accomplish it, and in his inmost heart he had felt that the accomplishing would not have been difficult.

At times wild pictures had presented themselves of the possibility of the beastly money taking the proverbial wings, opening for him the gates to paradise, but in his saner moments he derided such fancies, for with Mr. Waring to the fore there was not the slightest probability of such an occurrence. Instead, he had arrived at a condition where the wings were a necessity to himself if he would retain a rag of self respect. This cherished self respect was suffering considerably now in the yielding that had brought him back, and he had sternly limited himself to a week, even while calculating how often he might contrive to see her in the time without too greatly transgressing convention.

He was hurrying to his hotel to make himself presentable for an immediate call when, as he whipped into the broad, main avenue, a sight presented itself at which he recoiled as from a blow in the face. Leaning limply against a doorway, he stared, muttering, "Impossible, impossible!"

His wildest imaginings had materialized before his eyes, but he scornfully rejected the suggested explanations of his reason, repeating again and again, "Impossible!"

He was unconscious of the passing throng and too deeply shocked and absorbed to feel surprise when a hand clapped him upon the shoulder and a hearty voice cried: "Hello, old man! When did you blow in?"

Ellison seized the speaker and drew him around the corner.

"Fred," he demanded, "is that Miss Millicent Waring? My eyes tell me so, but I cannot believe them."

"Sure, that's Miss Waring."

"But—but—good heavens, what's she doing in the confectionery shop?"

"Selling, same as other shopkeepers."

"But why? Of course I see she is selling, but why?" He shook the other vehemently.

"Necessity, I suppose, same as the other shopkeepers again," he grinned, winking at a newcomer over Ellison's shoulder.

"Necessity!" yelled Ellison. "You don't mean—you can't mean!"

"Better moderate your emotion, Ellison," the newcomer advised, indicating a bluecoat who was regarding them suspiciously.

"Of course, boys"—Ellison's voice was a murmur—"of course I know you can't mean that she is obliged to do it."

"Why not? Couldn't old man Waring come a financial cropper, same as thousands of others just as astute as he?"

"The world could come to an end," Ellison jeered, but his heart had set up a sudden pounding that dizzied him.

"Comes to an end every day, dear boy, for those money kings when their little card houses tumble. It's a new world for them and their families, too, after that."

"You bet!" exclaimed one of another couple of youths who had added themselves to the group. "Miss Waring is undoubtedly finding a new world, all right."

Sundry aly winks and nods were exchanged by the four young fellows, acquaintances to whom Ellison had forgotten to give a greeting.

"Where's Mr. Waring?" he asked. "Oh, he's around. He's plucky. He'll pull it off again some time in the near future, I reckon."

"She's pulling them in by the hand, too," said Hughes. "She seems a natural saleslady—has the gift for trade."

Ellison flushed resentfully. "But it cannot be pleasant!"

"Oh, her position has its unpleasant features, of course," Stream interrupted lightly. "Some of the 'climbers' snub her, and disapproval riots on all sides, but Miss Millicent carries it off well. She might have married—that is, I suppose so," he insinuated, with wicked eyes.

"Yes, she might have married while the old man's pile was intact," Forrest assented.

"But she didn't. And a wife with prospective millions and one with nothing but expensive habits and nameable beauty are two very different things," Stream asserted.

Ellison turned a furious face upon him and half raised a clenched fist; then, mastering himself, he remarked, "I suppose that's the way the world sees it," and strode away.

The four rascals burst into exuberant delight, digging each other in the ribs and chuckling hilariously as he disappeared down a side street.

Ellison had no coherent thought at first as he tore along. The knowledge that the barrier between them was removed dazed him. But soon he began to turn things over in his mind, to even consider the possibility of his own thousands, which had seemed puerile before, now serving as a foundation for a new beginning on which Mr. Waring might build. The other, the infinitely greater possibility of winning Millicent, he tried to keep in the background until a proper hour for its consideration.

Having at last adjusted himself somewhat to the new conditions, he felt that he could trust himself to see her. They shook hands quietly. There was little opportunity just then for words, but there was a humorous yet tender glint in her eyes as she occasionally glanced at his earnest, preoccupied face while she served a bunch of school children.

The four conspirators let her into the secret and departed to spread broadcast the jest, the prank upon Ellison, whose sentiment toward Miss Waring was an open secret. And presently, by twos and threes and in squads, her old friends and former associates began to saunter by. Some purchased of her with simpering patronage, some with a cold nod of recognition, while others passed with haughty, sneering oblivion of her. Some of the smart youths inclined to a familiarity that almost amounted to rudeness.

Ellison noted it all, his heart growing hotter until it burst all restraint.

"Miss Waring—Millicent," he breathed with low intensity as they were alone for a moment. "I cannot bear this! It may be presumption, improper even, for me to speak here—I cannot help it! I am sure you have long known of my deep love for you, though you cannot realize how it is my very life and soul. I have had so little to offer I felt I could not presume to ask you to give up for me your luxurious position, to—but I can provide you with a comfortable home, and my whole life shall be devoted to"

His stammering speech was interrupted by the laughing, bubbling crowd of conspirators, eager to witness his discomfiture.

"Ha, ha! Look at him!" "Oh, the easy mark!" "Has he offered you his purse, Millicent?" "Ha, ha! The idea of Mr. Waring—" "Falled!" "As if—" "Ha, ha!"

Unheeding the swirl, Miss Waring calmly began counting money from the drawers and piling it in heaps upon the counter. "There," she said at last, "$427.10. That means $854.20 for the hospital from you fellows. You folks who dared me to do this promised to double the amount I took in, you know." She beamed at them sweetly.

"My hat! I never dreamed you'd pull in so much!" gasped Stream. "It's sure up to us, boys! But, oh, Ellison, sonny! Ellison—you—you—" He doubled with joy. "Your face pays for it all! See it now, don't you? Catch on to it? It was such a chance as comes once in a lifetime! Oh, my! Oh, my!"

Ellison perceived and turned a blank, mortified face to apologize to Miss Waring, but she laid a gentle, restraining hand upon his arm and again addressed the gurgling, crowding crowd very sweetly, but distinctly, "I claim your congratulations upon my success as a saleslady, and"—(she blushed adorably)—"and also upon my engagement to Mr. Ellison."

Thief Proof Bulbs.

The thief proof electric lamp bulb is here, called into existence because of the growing habit of replacing dead bulbs with those unscrewed from sockets in a neighboring office or room. No locks are used, the principle simply being that once screwed in a socket they cannot be taken out without smashing them. Once a bulb burns out it may as well be smashed; so there is no loss by this method, but only the inconvenience occasionally that the owner is unable to put in temporary bulbs of higher candle power. The thief is completely foiled. A ratchet arrangement permits the screwing of the bulb into the socket, but prevents it from being unscrewed so long as the bulb is sound. To remove the bulb, the globe is broken; and a catch is then accessible, by means of which the ratchet may be released.—Exchange.

Velveteen which has served its purpose as a dress or blouse should be preserved and made into polishing cloths. In this connection velveteen is almost as good as chamol leather, and cannot only be used for obtaining a fine polish on satin wood and mahogany furniture, but as a means of brightening silver and plated goods. When soiled the velveteen may be successfully cleaned by washing it in soapy lather.

Famous Flags.

There are only a few Old Glories in the Annapolis collection of 173 historic flags, but each is connected with some incident that gives it the honor of its present position. There is the thirty-one starred flag that flew beside the sunrise flag of Japan when the close shut doors of that island kingdom were pried open for American commerce. The old flag that Lieutenant Charles Haywood defended so gallantly in 1847 at San Jose, Lower California, is there to recall the story of how he and his tiny garrison held an old mission house for over three months against an overwhelming Mexican force. Here, too, are a few reminders of our history's saddest war. Side by side in the one case are draped the ensign of the Union man-of-war Kearsage and the stars and bars of the ensign of the Confederate cruiser Albemarle. Another treasure is the ensign of the battleship Maine, which was recovered fourteen years after the catastrophe in Havana harbor.—Christian Herald.

Diamonds and Wealth.

A famous French scientist estimates that all the diamonds recovered in the history of the world could be packed in a box three feet wide, six feet high and eight feet long and would weigh less than thirty tons.

It seems almost beyond the power of mind to grasp the fact that a treasure worth more than a billion dollars in gold could be contained in so small a space. The high value of the gems is still more strikingly illustrated by the fact that gold to the value of a billion dollars would weigh more than 4,000,000 pounds. Diamonds as a measure of money occupy a large place in civilization. But when one takes into consideration how far diamonds are from constituting the real wealth of nations or a measure of brains, of true social standing or worth while success in life the enormous expenditure of human energy represented by the pile of gems valued at a billion dollars is an appalling waste.—Chicago Herald.

The Poison In Poison Ivy.

Poison ivy has long been a mystery both to scientists and laymen. Why and in what manner it causes the peculiar rash and irritating inflammation have puzzled both botanists and physicians. But Dr. Minade of Paris says his study of the plant shows that poison ivy contains prussic acid. This is found principally in the young leaves and buds. In older leaves there is very little of it.

In three and one-half ounces of young leaves there is about a quarter of a grain of the acid.

As with other plants in which prussic acid is found, the poisonous substance does not exist in its perfect form, but develops as soon as the leaves are bruised, a chemical action being set up through the union of an enzyme with a glucosid.

They Don't Want Strangers.

In the northwestern part of Switzerland, far from the tourist's path, is a little town, Selsach, where for more than 250 years watchmaking has been the chief industry. "There are no machines in the place for the production of watch parts—the men work as did their fathers and grandfathers," says the Berlin Post. "A feature of the place is the Passion play, produced every summer by the watchmakers and the members of their families. These simple people have succeeded in maintaining for their play a modest dignity and have not allowed it to become commercial. The few notices of the Saturday performances which one sees in the neighboring places contain the information that the town 'cannot accommodate many strangers'."

Careful John.

A rural storekeeper was greatly bothered by rats which infested his building, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Also he possessed a valuable watchdog which guarded the premises at night. One night, just before he locked up, he scattered poison around the place and left a note on the counter for the clerk who opened the store in the morning.

The clerk found the note as was intended. But he nearly dropped through the floor when he read:

"Jerry—You take the poison in the morning so the dog won't get it. There is some in the cellar too. John."

The Signal.

"How do you endure listening to Bliggins' funny stories? He spoils them by laughing at them himself."

"That's what I like about him. You don't have to listen in order to laugh at the right time. All you have to do is to wait till he gives the signal."—Washington Star.

"If I had my life to live over," she began.

"Yes, I know," he interrupted. "If you had your life to live over you would marry one of the fellows who proposed to you before I came along."

"Nothing of the kind," she replied. "If I had my life to live over I'd marry some weak minded, brutal person. Then I'd have nothing to expect and shouldn't be disappointed."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Mark Twain's Retort.

At a hotel in Jericho was an American who had accompanied Mark Twain on his camping trip through the Holy Land.

"No, sir," said he in the course of the evening's conversation, "I cannot recall a single instance when the humorist was caught napping. Once we thought we had him sure. Mr. Twain came late to the dinner table, when we had sat down, and before he appeared we had invented a clever trap."

"He was still several courses behind when the rest of us were ready for salad, but every one stopped eating until Mr. Twain caught up. He had started intently on a crisp leaf of lettuce before he noticed that no one else was eating. He paused questioning. That was our opportunity."

"Now, Mr. Twain," some one asked, "why are you like Nebuchadnezzar?" expecting that the answer would imply that it was because he was eating grass like an ox. Instead, and without an instant's hesitation, came the retort:

"'Because I am feeding with the brutes.'"—Pearson's Weekly.

Ice Glazed Salmon.

Ice jackets have been found to be the best protection for frozen salmon on their long journeys from the Pacific coast to all parts of the world. Thousands of tons of salmon are now frozen in the great factories of the coast for export, because the combination of the ice jackets and the frozen meat has been found to keep the fish from becoming tainted. After the salmon are bled they are kept at a temperature of zero, or near there, for forty-eight hours and are frozen hard. If they were shipped this way, however, the air would get to the fish to some extent and tainting would result, so they are dipped in tanks of water and given another freezing. This puts a thin jacket of ice all over each fish, or glazes him, as it is called. After two coats of glazing the salmon are wrapped in paper, packed in paper lined boxes and started to the export markets.—Saturday Evening Post.

Lucky Lightning Strikes.

To be struck by lightning is still a most lucky thing for the Greek peasant—if he is not killed. "Such a man," says J. C. Lawson, "may indulge a taste for idleness for the rest of his life—his neighbors will support him—and enjoy at the same time the reputation of being something more than human." This is an inheritance from ancient days. Artemidorus, an authority on occult matters who flourished in the times of Marcus Aurelius, commented on the fact that while a place struck by lightning had an altar erected upon it and was thenceforth both honored and avoided, "no one who has been struck by lightning is excluded from citizenship; indeed, such a one is honored even as a god." The election of Quintus Julius Eburnus to the consulship in 110 B. C. is attributed to his having been favored thus by the gods.—London Spectator.

"Do the letters 'st,' 'd' and 'th' have to be followed by a period when used thus: 1st, 2d, 4th? What is this combination—an abbreviation, contraction or merely a sign?"

In the forms 1st, 2d, 4th, etc., we have ordinal numerals in which an Arabic figure is substituted for the spelled out name of the cardinal number from which the ordinal is derived. The letters added to the Arabic numeral form the specific inflection which changes the cardinal to an ordinal numeral. The forms in question, then, are neither abbreviations nor contractions, nor yet mere signs. They are like a humorist's bit for before, only they are not whimsical, as they would be if no one had seen them before and some one should suddenly use them.—Literary Digest.

When Juris Mete.

Up in Alaska there used to be a district attorney who was long on native oratory, but short on education. Once, while prosecuting a big case, he came to the finish of his argument, and, according to Wilson Mizner, who was up there at the time, he leaned across the rail and made this plea:

"All I asts of you, gentlemen of the jury, is that you now retire and mete out justice as she deserves to be met!"—Saturday Evening Post.

He Made Them Read It.

Daughter—Have you found out yet what it was that papa cut out of the paper? Mother—Yes. I bought a copy. I've read it all through, but to save my life I can't see anything wrong in it. It's an article on the vulgarity and silliness of buying gowns that are beyond one's means.

To Freshen a Feather Bed.

If you have a feather box that has become rather limp looking because it has been out in damp weather, try this means of freshening it. It is best to try it, too, as soon as you come in:

Take a bowlful of boiling water, sprinkle into a handful of ordinary white salt and then when it is dissolved shake the feather box in it.

MAGIC OF HOUDIN

He Scared the Algerians and Conquered the Nation.

A LITTLE BLACK BOX DID IT.

By the Aid of a Magnet and a Current of Electricity He Struck Terror to the Hearts of the Arabs and Took All the Desire For Fight Out of Them.

"These are great times," exulted the Electrician to his friend the Old Foggy. "With machine guns and other instruments of war we certainly are going some in the fighting game."

"Yes," agreed the Old Foggy as he adjusted his glasses, "but do you know that before such things were dreamed of an entire nation was conquered with a magnet and a little black box?"

And the Electrician confessed, "No!" "You have heard, no doubt," the Old Foggy rambled on, "of the marvelous inventions of Robert Houdin, the great French conjurer, a man who did great things with electricity when Alexander Graham Bell was an infant."

"Houdin applied electricity to many of his magical experiments and delighted the Parisian public for years in his little theater. When he retired he was the most favored performer of his day and had bowed to the plaudits of royalty."

"Heard all about that," snapped the Electrician. "What about the black box?"

"Coming to that, boy; coming to that. Houdin retired to his family estate on the left bank of the River Loire near St. Gervaise, hoping to end his days in peace. But after a year or so there came to him through a military friend a request from the French government that he go to Algiers."

"In his memoirs, translated into English some years before his death, he says that the Marabouts of that country, a sort of medicine men and wonder working priests, controlled the masses and incited them to intermittent revolts against the French by their tricks. These tricks, he assures us, were of the simplest and most primitive type."

"It was the hope of the French government that Houdin by his mysteries could demonstrate that the white conqueror's magic was superior. And Houdin did it."

"With the little black box and the magnet?"

"Yes. His recital of his performance in Algiers is exceedingly interesting. Some of the most distinguished natives were there. Houdin showed them all sorts of things; allowed himself to be shot at and caught the bullets unharmed and many other such feats."

"But his piece de resistance undoubtedly was his box. He called for a strong man to come on the stage, and a giant responded. Houdin toyed with him for a moment, bantered with him about his strength and asked him if he could lift his little black box. Disdainfully the Arab lifted it and smiled."

"But Houdin warned him: 'Wait. But a moment, and you shall be as a little child!' He placed the box on the stage over the magnet and dared his huge guest to raise it. The Arab tried with one finger; grasped it with his great muscular hand; tugged at it with all the strength of his massive arms, bracing his legs like two huge bronze columns, so Houdin says, to no avail. Try as he would, this son of the desert could not stir that little box from its place."

"For a breathing spell he released his grip for a moment, then went at it again as Houdin gave a signal to have the current turned off. And while the awe stricken audience panted in amazement he suddenly writhed in acute agony and sank groveling to the stage. The current coursing through him had galvanized him into misery."

"Then Houdin gave a signal, the current from the electro magnet beneath the stage was turned off, and the Arab fell back groaning. He lifted himself to his feet and, hiding his face in his cloak, crept away to blush unseen. The little black box had conquered."

"And?"—inquired the Electrician.

"And," replied the Old Foggy, "Houdin was triumphant. The country had seen him shot at by a man who said he wished to kill; had seen him rob a giant of his strength. No Marabout had ever done that. No Marabout with primitive tricks could convince them that any revolt of theirs could prevail against the white man and his magic—his electricity. The conqueror's conquest was complete."—Popular Electricity.

"What have you done with the home hints in your magazine?"

"Had to abandon them in favor of a snuffragette department."—Washington Herald.

No Municipal Elections in Didsbury

Monday was nomination day for Councillors and School Trustees in Didsbury, and according to the list of nominees who were brought out for these positions the ratepayers evidently thought there was no need of putting more candidates in the field and causing an election because with one exception they are all experienced men in municipal affairs who have proved themselves worthy.

Three Councillors and two School Trustees were wanted this year.

Of course under the new amendments to the Municipal Act Mayor Atkins sits in the Mayors chair for another year to fill out the two-year term.

COUNCILLORS

Councillor Chambers hardly needs an introduction to the ratepayers as they already know his record, and there was no mistake made when the same ratepayers decided that they wished him on the Council for another two-year term. His record has been good.

J. M. Reed is also well known in the community that he also needs no introduction. His three years experience as a former town clerk should make Mr. Reed an excellent Councillor; he is also a good business man.

The new blood in the Council this year is Thomas Stark, proprietor of the barber shop and pool room on Railway street. Mr. Stark is a young man and has had no municipal experience of any kind as yet, but it is the young element who should take more interest in municipal affairs, on a quantity Mr. Stark will come to get his feet wet in the municipal public.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES

Two School Trustees were wanted and the ratepayers still backed up the two old war horses in school affairs by again returning Messrs. G. B. Sexsmith and Wm. Rupp by acclamation to the positions which they have held for so many years with credit to themselves as well as the school.

This is how the line up for the Council and school board stands now: Council—Mayor H. B. Atkins; Councillors J. Sinclair, H. E. Osmond, F. Moyle, H. W. Chambers, J. M. Reed, T. Stark.

School Board—Dr. A. J. Weart, J. V. Berscht, H. Reiner, G. B. Sexsmith, Wm. Rupp.

Sermons and Lecture by Principal Lyde a Success

The sermons of Principal Lyde delivered at the Anniversary service of Knox Church last Sunday, and his lecture on Shakespeare on Monday night, marking him as one of the foremost Educationalists, Preachers and Lecturers of Canada. All who listened to him must have said to himself, or herself, "Here is one; Scientist, Philosopher, Modern Theologian, who is no mistake, but a real man of God, with a great faith in God and his fellow men."

It is a fortunate thing for Alberta as a whole and especially for the Methodists of Alberta, to have a man with the religious zeal and wide scholarship of Dr. Lyde (Dr. of Science; Dr. of Philosophy; Dr. of Laws; Dr. of Divinity) in charge of the education of a goodly number of our coming ministers.

It may be interesting to some to know that Principal Lyde is one of our strongest advocates of church union and that he has already completed a plan of cooperation with the Methodist College at Edmonton whereby union classes are held and the Professors of both Robertson and Alberta Colleges lecture to all the Methodist and Presbyterian students.

The concert on Monday evening as well as the lecture was excellent and did great credit to our local talent. The audience was good too. It filled the theatre. That was as it should have been, of course, but a concert and lecture of such a high class is not always largely patronized, and thus it is perhaps not out of place to mention the fact. Let credit be given when credit is due. If such forms of entertainment (whether put on under home or outside auspices) were more widely patronized the low class of entertainment would disappear. Managers of theatrical companies, concert companies, etc., put on the stage what they know the people will patronize and when the theatre and concert go people show their preference for good things by attending them and staying away from the poor they'll get the good.

Those who attended the theatre Monday night have therefore done something to encourage high class entertainment.

Ratepayers Meeting

A supposed ratepayers meeting was held on Monday evening, November 24th, for the purpose of hearing a report from the Town Clerk as to the financial standing of the town and also to hear the Mayor and Councillors give an account of their stewardship for the past year.

Unfortunately there was an exceedingly poor meeting of the ratepayers, only five being present. It is claimed that no one knew of the meeting because it was so poorly advertised, the antiquated method of posting a written notice in the post office being thought sufficient to advertise this very important meeting by the Town Council.

Mayor Atkins, B. A. St. Clair, town clerk, and Councillors Moyle and Chambers were present to give any information that was needed but there was no discussion of any kind which was unfortunate.

The Easy Laxative

In justice to yourself you should try Rexall Orderlies, — your money back if you don't like them. They are a candy confection that really do give easy relief from constipation.

Good health is largely dependent upon the bowels. When they become sluggish the waste material that is thrown off by the system accumulates. This condition generates poisons which circulate throughout the body, tending to create coated tongue, bad breath, headache, dull brain action, nervousness, biliousness and other annoyances.

Avoid harsh cathartics and physics. They give but temporary relief. They often aggravate the real trouble. They are particularly bad for children, delicate or aged persons.

Rexall Orderlies

Come in tablet form, taste just like candy and are noted for their easy, soothing action upon the bowels. They don't purge, gripe, cause nausea, looseness, nor the inconveniences attendant upon the use of purgatives. Their action is so pleasant that the taking of Rexall Orderlies almost becomes a desire instead of a duty.

Children like Rexall Orderlies. They are ideal for aged or delicate persons as well as for the most robust. They act toward relieving constipation, and also to overcome its cause and to make unnecessary the frequent use of laxatives. They serve to tone and strengthen the nerves and muscles of the bowels and associated organs or glands.

Make Us Prove It

We guarantee to refund every penny paid us for Rexall Orderlies if they do not give entire satisfaction. We ask no promises and we in no way obligate you. Your mere word is sufficient for us to promptly and cheerfully refund the money.

Doesn't that prove that Rexall Orderlies must be right? You must know we would not dare make such a promise unless we were positively certain that Rexall Orderlies will do all we claim for them. There is no money risk attached to a trial of Rexall Orderlies, and in justice to yourself, you should not hesitate to test them.

Rexall Orderlies come in convenient vest-pocket size tin boxes. 12 tablets, 10c; 36 tablets, 25c; 80 tablets, 50c.

Saves Fence Posts

A new bulletin is now available at the Forestry Branch, Ottawa, describing some simple and inexpensive methods of preserving fence posts from decay. It has been found that the generous application of hot creosote to well-seasoned posts stripped of bark, even when only painted on with a brush, will add at least ten years to the life of the least durable woods. Many common Canadian woods which hitherto decayed too rapidly to be so used are thus made available for fence posts. The saving in first cost and transportation more than balances the cost of treatment, while the cost of placing the post will be much less when considered as an annual charge.
